

Team Roles for Collaborative Meetings

Role	Description
Facilitator	Listens actively to all participants and summarizes as needed, reminds the group of the meeting purpose and norms, guides the meeting using agendas and templates, creates a product from the meeting, pays attention to group dynamics, ensures all voices are heard, stops side conversations, refocuses dialogue, and most important, guides the team process
Recorder or notetaker	Records big ideas of the meeting without adding opinions, checks with participants as needed to ensure accurate recording, distributes notes to the team and principal, and archives all notes in an agreed-on location
Timekeeper	Follows time frames, informs members of time remaining either verbally or nonverbally, and works with the facilitator to negotiate time frames
Engaged participant	Engages in the work, listens, questions, contributes, and commits to the collaborative process; believes he or she can make an impact, and plans to take collective action