

Team Roles, Norms, and Accountability

One meeting, three short worksheets that lead into each other

Today your team sets up how it will work — roles first, then norms, then how you'll hold each other to them. Each worksheet ends by handing into the next, so the meeting flows as one connected set. Treat it as a strong first pass.

Meeting 2 · Wednesday, August 26, 2026 · 45 minutes

Focus	How will we work together in a way that keeps student learning at the center?
Leave with	Assigned roles, specific and measurable norms, and an agreed way to hold each other accountable — finalized at Meeting 4.

Agenda

Time	What the team does	Worksheet to use
0–3 min	Frame the flow — name the three parts and revisit your Meeting 1 commitment.	—
3–13 min	Assign roles — facilitator / team leader, recorder, and timekeeper, with backups.	Worksheet 1 · Team Roles
13–33 min	Write norms — turn vague values into 4–6 specific, observable “We will...” commitments.	Worksheet 2 · Developing Specific Norms
33–43 min	Set up accountability — agree your protocol and practice one move.	Worksheet 3 · Holding Each Other Accountable
43–45 min	Hand off — note what to finalize at the Meeting 4 buffer.	—

The three worksheets are a set: Team Roles → Developing Specific Norms → Holding Each Other Accountable. Each one ends with a “Leave with → next step” that carries into the one after it.

Finalize at the Meeting 4 buffer

Today is a first pass. At Meeting 4, teams refine their roles and norms and complete the Holding Each Other Accountable worksheet — so the way you work is settled before the learning cycle begins. (Your Collaborative Team Rubric baseline happens at Meeting 3.)
